Court Cullings.

George Wabnitz yesterday submitted a petition, before Judge Cox, against J. M. Radeliffe, for an injunction. The plaintiff owns mill property on the Great Miami river, in Crosby township, driven by water obtained from a dam built 50 by water obtained from a dam built 50 years ago. The defendant recently built a mill on the other side of the river, in Colerain township, and obtained his power in the same way. By the recent floods, and for other reasons, the plaintiff alleges that the dam now needs repairs, that defendant refused to make any repairs, and by threats of violence prevented the plaintiff from doing so; that after the late flood the plaintiff, to save his property, went with a force of men and material to repair the damage; the defendant, with his men, came and with guns threatened to shoot the plaintiff's men, so that he was compelled to give up the attempt to make any repairs. An injunction was asked to prevent the interference of the defendant.

terference of the defendant. Judge Cox allowed a temporary injunc-tion until further order, the bond being fixed in the sum of $500. George B. Hol-lister appeared for the plaintiff. Leave was granted to the Mt. Auburn Presbyterian Church yesterday to bor-row $5,000 on its church property on Au-row $5,000 on its church property on Auburn avenue.

In the case of the City against J. Cook and others, mentioned before, the jury returned a verdict finding that John Byan, the owner of Lots Nos. 6 and 7, which were condemued for widening Summit street, was entitled to $300 compensation; and that J. F. Moser, the owner of Lot No. 5, was entitled to $750. The will of John P. Dabney, of the city of Fayal, in the Azores, was admitted to record.

Cincinnati Cotton Exchange. The annual meeting of the Cotton Exchange took place yesterday, at which President B. W. Wasson submitted his report. He stated that the present indications point to an increased business during the coming cotton year; that the crop promises well throughout the cot-ton regions; and, that with increased ton regions; and, that with increased facilities for transportation, the cotton manufacturers enter upon the season with augmented experience and unstanted enterprise.

Owing to the recent games played by the Stars in which they have been so successful, great things were expected yesterday in their game with the Brown Stockings, of St. Louis, but the Fates would not have it thus. The Stars must would not have it thus. The Stars must play without making so many errors it they intend to defeat one of the first pro-fessional nines in the country. It seems that the Stars care very little about beat-ing any club but those at home. They can play an almost faultless game with the Cincinnati Beds or the Ludlows, but with the Chicagos or Browns they seem to loss their nerve, or else they want to to lose their nerve, or else they want to show strangers how proficient they are at muffing. The Stars did some good batting but the errors were too much for them. The following is the score by innings:

Umpire-Chas. Sweasy, of Cincinnati Reds

The Reds, of St. Louis, played a game with the Blue Stockings on the grounds of the latter. The score was kept close, but there was no good playing on either side. The result was 6 to 4 in layor of the St. Louis Club.

On to-morrow afternoon the Blue Stockings play the Covington Stars on the Cumminsville grounds. The Brown Stockings will play our Reds on Saturday afternoon.

The Emmet Green Stockings will play the City Building nine on the Blue Stocking grounds this afternoon.

CARL SCHURZ AT HOME.

He is Still a Hard Money Man. From the New York Herald of Yesterday. After introducing himself to Mr. Schurz the reporter held the following conversation with the bold Missourian: Reporter-I have come to learn your views, Mr. Schurz, on the present state of the political fleid in this country. Mr. Schurz (laughingly)-Why, my dear sir, you have arrived too soon. I must post myself as to what has been doing since I left home. I certainly have seen the Herald and other American papers in my wanderings abroad, but only at rare intervals. To be frank with you I ought to interview you instead of you

The reporter consented to this change of roles, and Mr. Schurz asked:

"What is your present sensation in the New York press?"

Reporter—Well, the Guibord affair in Montreal is one of them. The reporter then told the story of that religious war between Catholies and Protestants, at which Mr. Schurz expressed great regret that such a state of things should come to pass. The next subject touched on was the Maine election, and the report that the Democrats were said to be in the ascendant, which evidently pleased him. Then the rag mney campaign in Ohio. Mr. Schurz declined, however, to express his opinions as to whether Democrats or Republicans would carry the day. In reply to a question as to whether Mr. Schurz had become imbued at all with inflation ideas, he replied, "You know I am a hard money man." Then he asked as to what had been done in the recent Republican Convention at Saratora, who had been convention at Saratora and convention at Saratora convention at Saratora convention at Saratora c had been done in the recent Republican Convention at Saratoga, who had been nominated for office, and also if Clarence nominated for office, and also if Clarence Seward had accepted the nomination. While the reporter was being "interviewed" Commodore Schwensen had gone on board the tugboat Only Son to clear his vessel at the Custom House, and was then waving his hand as a signal of farewell to his passengers. Mr. Schurz, happening to look out on the bay, saw what was passing and said, "I am very sorry I did not bid my friend Schwensen good-by. I went over with him, and think he is a splendid sailor and fine tellow in every respect." Then him, and tank he is a spiedd sailor and fine fellow in every respect." Then the New York Democratic Convention was discussed and numerous other mat-ters. At last the reporter thought it was ters. At last the reporter thought it was his turn to ask a few questions, and asked Mr. Schurz where he had spent his holiday on the Continent of Europe. He replied: I left here the 29th of April, and have visited Berlin, Hamburg, Kiel, England and Switzerland, where I spent in the latter place my time in the Grisons and Bernese Oberland.

Reporter—Did you do any alpenstock work while in Switzerland?

Mr. Schurz (laughingly)—Oh no; I went on excursions, however, similar to?

Mr. Schurz (laughingly)—Oh no; I went on excursions, however, similar to those enjoyed there by the majority of people. Whitein England I resided principally at London. I made no speeches anywhere, save when my friends gave me a banquet in Berlin last June. Another halt in the conversation occurred here by Mr. Schurz asking the whereabouts at the present moment of Vice President Wilson.

The reporter then asked Mr. Schurz

The reporter then asked Mr. Schurz what his present movements were to be, and he replied, "I shall go to the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and propose stopping a few days in New York, when I shall go West." At this time several triends of Mr. Schurz came up to speak to him, and the reporter bade him good day. A fel, low passenger of Mr. Schurz said that Mr. Schurz used to write every evening while on the passage for a protracted length of time. He spoke politics with noted and carefully eschewed the sub-length of time. He spoke politics with nobody, and carefully eschewed the subject. On the 10th the Pommerania was caught in a hurricane and had a great many of her sails split.

Upon arriving at the wharf in Hoboken hundreds of people had gathered to welcome Mr. Schurz back to the United States. His particular friend, Dr. Jacobi, of Thirty-fourth street, was absent, however. Under the present cumbersome system of collecting duties on passengers' passage the delay here was terrible and of hours' duration. Gen. Nichols, at the head of the custom brigade, worked manfully; but their task was a Herculean one. Women begging to be allowed to take the customs oath, wearied with waiting, were to be seen all along the wharf; men using language lar from complimentary to our customs far from complimentary to our customs system, the customs officers with per-spiration streaming down their face, and, with Mr. Byron in the leading role. THE GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.—Miss Gray appeared in the beautiful play of "Camille" last evening. This is one of her most popular parts, and one in which she has a host of admirers. The dying she has a host of admirers. The dying scene last evening was rendered with great skill and won for Miss Gray meny encomiums. The "Armand" of Mr. Roche was a talented piece of acting. Mr. Mark Price made his first appearance last evening and was immediately recognized as another of the giants of this powerful stock company at the Grand. To-night Miss Gray appears as "Lady Isabel and Madame Vine," in the popular play "East Lynne."
